December 2019

The holidays are finally here – and its time to buy yourself and your favorite fellow gamer some war-game stuff!! My friend Rob and I have for years exchanged Christmas gifts – each of us getting the other war-game related stuff. Its always been my favorite Christmas gift, because I know the box does not contain socks or underwear!! One of my great traditions over the years.

We just finished up a very successful MillenniumCon last month – thanks to everyone who attended, ran games, helped out with setup and running the event. Our attendance was up by 33 this year (362 to 395) so next year we are pushing for an attendance of 400+. We also signed up 36 new LSHM members. Our membership now stands at 238. You can still join this year if you are not a current member – your membership of $5 helps the organization promote the hobby and run events throughout the year.

We have a lot of events planned to finish up the year and throughout 2020. We hope to see you at the gaming table.

Continue to submit articles for the newsletter to me – we love to see what you have planned for the new year.

Have a great Christmas and New Years – see you in 2020!

The Lone Star Historical Miniatures (LSHM).

We promote miniatures wargaming in primarily historical periods but also fantasy/sci-fi. We are not dedicated to one rule set or scale. We promote miniatures wargaming by running events, helping local conventions, and assisting with tournaments, financial backing and run demo games. We will also run gaming classes at schools. We encourage all gamers to be a part of our group to help support our common hobby.

A Bloody Broadside Scenario Game

Submitted by Alan Spencer

Pictures by Alan Spencer and Ben Earnest

For our monthly Lone Star Historical Miniatures (LSHM) game day, Ben Earnest and I decided to try out Bloody Broadside's rules (Portsmouth Miniatures) in a scenario format on Sunday November 24 at The Game Closet in Waco, TX.

The Scenario

The scenario depicted three small (i.e. class 4 frigates/schooners) pirates in hiding behind islands, against a Dutch merchantman (Class 3 ship, but ship firepower reduced to 2), and a late arriving (turn 3) Dutch 2nd rate ship-of-the-line (Admiral de Ruyder – 80 guns). Both Dutch crews were B class, the Pirate crews all C class for morale.

The goal is simple, Dutch get their merchantman off the table to the far corner, or sink all the pirates. Pirates just had to sink the Dutch merchantman.

In addition, we had a couple of other rules for the scenario.

Three (3) islands were placed. Any water hex touched by an island meant the ship had to roll to see if they run aground (used fouling and ramming rules).

Wind direction had a possibility of changing. On doubles of odd digits, it went 60 degrees right (starboard). Doubles of even digits, 60 degrees left (port). This did happen a couple of times.

The Game “Twas a fine day for sailin’ ... and blastin’ things”

The Dutch merchant Uretch (not a true 64 gun class 3, but a stripped down merchantman) was returning to Europe with a load of good Caribbean rum. Ben assumed command of the Dutch ships. I took command of the pirate ships located in the picture below, which also shows the initial wind direction.

While the pirate fleets were expecting the Dutchman to go between the islands, the wily old sea dog Ben initially chose to try and head North East rather than between the islands.

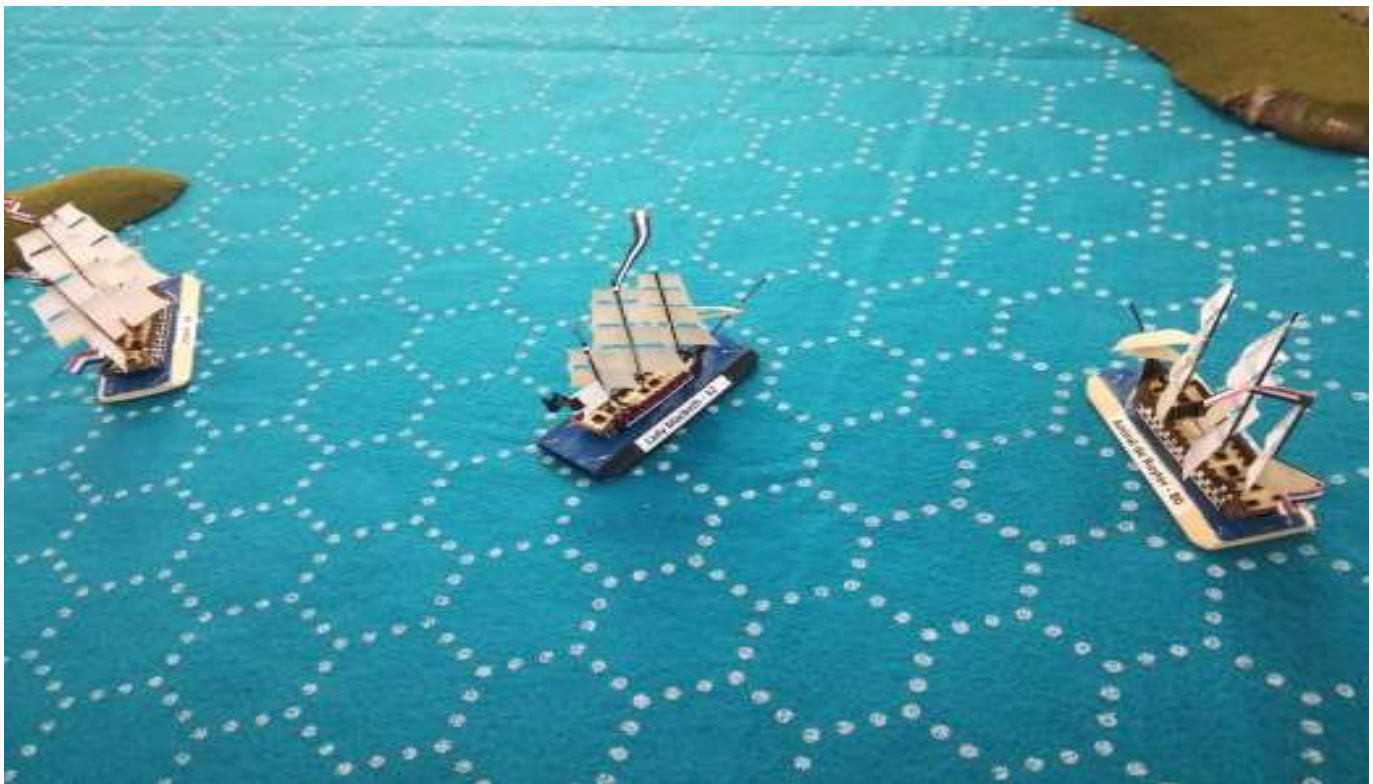

This left the Lady MacBeth (seen below) the only one with any hopes of early engagement, as both the Damnation and the Black Swan would be fighting against the wind to close.

The pirate crew of the Lady Macbeth licked their chops as the Utrecht tried to strike north east but was unable to clear the island due to the wind direction.

And further to the south, the Utrecht could see two more pirates trying to close, but they were also fighting the wind direction.

The Lady Macbeth's crew fired as they closed, with the Utrecht's well-trained crew giving as good as they got (as the pirates had gotten too close). And then, to the pirates horror and the Dutch glee, a second rate ship-of-the-line arrived on the horizon – the 80 gun Admiral de Ruyder.

The Macbeth's crew attempt to reverse away before the de Ruyder closed, but then the wind shifted – giving the de Ruyder all the wind she needed to close on the pirates quickly. This left the Lady MacBeth trapped between the two Dutch ships.

While the Dutch were having a field day, the Black Swan was sailing back and forth trying to move north, but she kept getting caught in wind shift, even to the point of running aground.

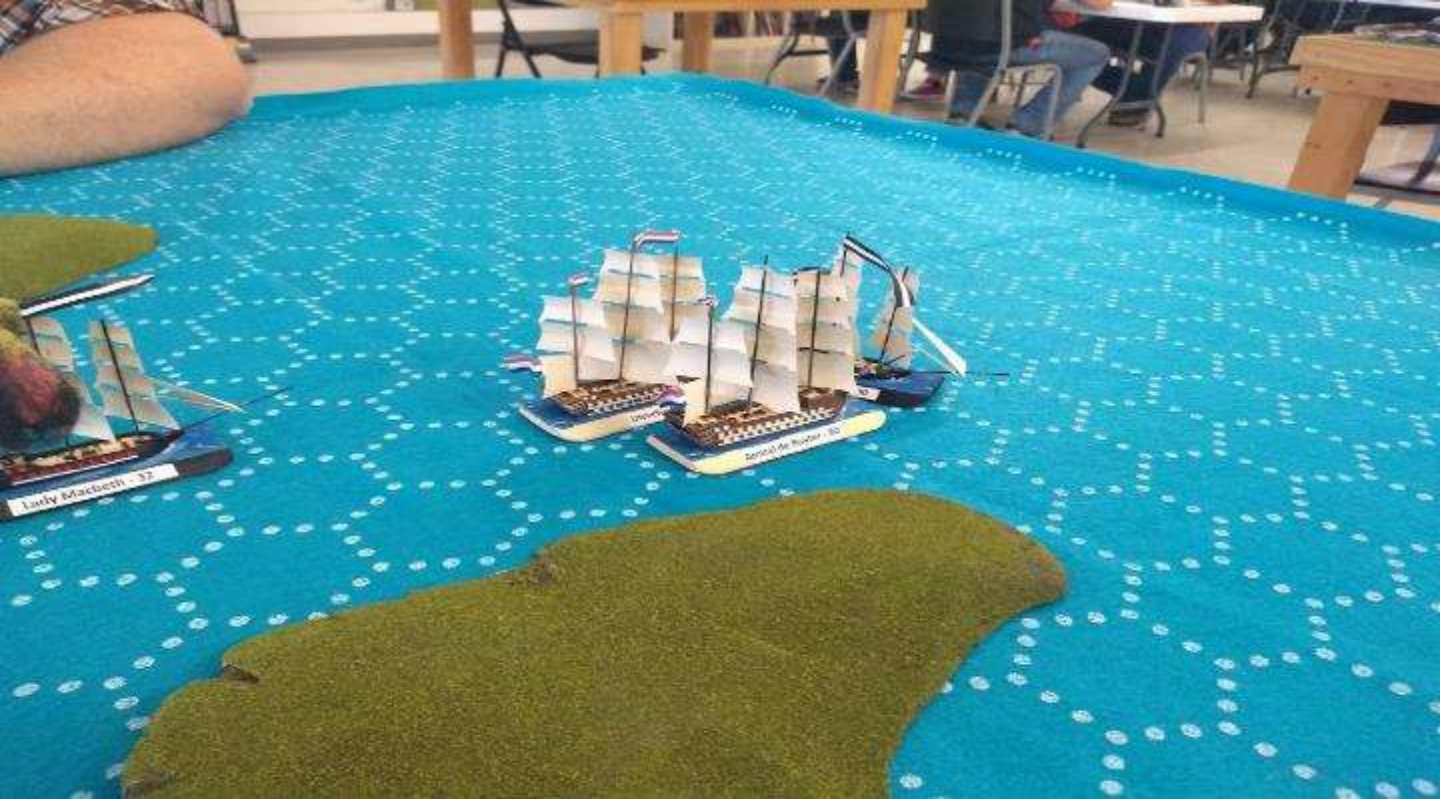

With a final wind shift, The Damnation was able to finally move up to support the Lady MacBeth. But she had been battered hard. Those 80 guns HURT! Anyway, 2 battlelines finally formed with the Dutch on the north, and pirates on the south.

Death of the Lady Macbeth – in a brilliant maneuver the Dutch captain sent orders to the merchantman to attempt a daring turn – and it worked completely! The Lady Macbeth was subjected to bow and stern rakes, decimating her crew to Davy Jones locker, leaving her a drifting hulk.

The Damnation, seeing the death of her sister ship, pulled ahead, attempting to try get a quick shot off, or escape around the island.

The Dutch captain, so proud of his exploit, tried another fancy maneuver. But his orders were misinterpreted by the merchant captain. And instead of both coming alongside the pirate ship, they fouled each other right in bow rake positions!

Between the wind no changing, the blocking island and pirate ship, the Damnation plowed turn after turn of bow rakes into the Utrecht until she finally had to strike her colors (crew all dead). The Damnation was taking quite a pounding as well from the de Ruyder, but the pirates would be able to come back for the rum.

Games of Black Seas allow you to recreate the thrilling naval battles of the age of sail in all their glory. Utilising a unique and innovative initiative system based around the most important factor of sail powered combat - the wind. Additional rules enable you to fight in a 'line of battle', engage shore batteries, take your enemies with withering initial broadsides or capture vessels in heroic boarding actions. All while avoiding such hazards to navigation as fog banks, fire ships and shipwrecks, rules allow you to field fleets comprised of vessels ranging from the tiniest galleon up to the true giants of the waves, the mighty rate warships. Also included are rules for such famed vessels as Bucentauro, Santa Isabella Trinidad, USS Constitution, and the legendary HMS Victory.

Fate of a Nation/'Nam wrap up. The first game saw Tony (Egyptian) defend against Nathanael (Israeli) in the Bridgehead scenario.

It was a bloody affair but the Israelis' formation broke when they lost their Isherman formation commander and mortar half-tracks while losing none of their four support Sho't Kals (up gunned Centurions).

Lesson learned was to protect your core formation (Pics 1-5). The other game saw Evan ('Nam Armored Cav) defend against Chris (Jordanian Pattons, Centurions and Mech Infantry) in the Blocking Force mission. The US forces with only a single infantry unit relied on 6 Sheridans to defend the 2nd objective. Combined fire from 8 Pattons and 3 Centurions realized 4 Sheridans in flames and 2 bailed out while 3 Jordanian Pattons were in flames.

Aggressive movement simultaneously by a Mech infantry platoon assaulted and destroyed the 2 bailed out Sheridans sealing the Jordanian victory (Pics 6-8). The Americans are going back to the formation design drawing board and will not be so easily defeated next game.
