

Welcome to February 2019! We held our annual membership / business meeting last month and re-elected the board of directors – thank you to the board for volunteering to serve another year.

We have a lot of great events coming up this year (see inside the newsletter) so plan to get involved. This year the Dallas area will hold its first BOLT ACTION tournament at the Dallas Open. If you play Bolt Action you should we plan to attend. Also LSHM will be at GamExpo in San Antonio, if you would like to attend or run a game let us know. Mark Leroux has agreed to head the event for LSHM.

There are some great gaming opportunities in Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio and Austin, so time to get involved.

We would love to hear about your 2019 gaming project, send me some pictures and a short write-up of what you have planned for the year.

And of course start planning for MillenniumConXXII in November.

Colonial game

Using some home brewed rules

By Dave Bennett
Austin Texas

We decided to dust off Marty's old colonial rules and give them another go. I am very glad we did. I had forgotten how much fun these rules are. Gordon and I did a great game Northwest Frontier scenario where the Afghans are attacking Russians instead of the British.

The Russians set up their initial defensive line as hordes of screaming Afghans come running towards them.

I used the Indian army list from the NWF army list to create the Russians which seemed to work well. This was a real nail-biter of a fight and the Afghans managed to take the objective on turn 5 but I was able to blast them off the objective with some lucky shooting and a desperate bayonet charge that saved the day for the Russians. The lighting in Gordon's game room is very uneven but I managed to get a few pictures that are semi-decent.

Both sides start taking casualties but the Russian right and left flanks are in real danger as the Afghans get within charge range.

Several Russian companies form square in hopes of fending off the charging hordes

Over on the left flank, the rifle company fails to form square before the Afghan hordes reach them and die like dogs under the Afghans blades

The Russian company actually holding the objective breaks and runs leaving a huge hole in the Russian line that is quickly filled by angry natives. Happily for the Russians the other companies rally and are just able to beat off the attackers and maintain control of the objective as turn 6 comes to an end.

On April 13-14th, the Dallas Open will be hosting their first Bolt Action GT. Warlord Games has been working diligently to create their international tournament circuit, and Dallas Open is proud to be one of the first wargaming conventions to be sanctioned as an official GT event. The tournament will feature 5 rounds, 3 on Saturday and 2 on Sunday. Taking care to ensure we have the best judges, we have teamed up with Warlord and Tony Meyers, who is running the Las Vegas Open Bolt Action Tournament this year. In addition to the standard Warlord prize package, the winner of this 32 player tournament will win a FAT Mat as well as a 3D printed and professionally painted WWII era pistol. All attendees get what we consider the best swag bag in the state. Dallas Open objective markers, magnets, bits, discount cards, and even a free beer at the local microbrew that everyone is planning on meeting up at Saturday night to chat about all the crazy things that happened in game that day. But even though this is a competitive tournament, we still value the artistic element of the game. The best painted army will win a plaque and voucher card graciously donated by Kromlech. Join in the excitement of playing one of the best tabletop wargames, and join in the hunt for the Bolt Action International Tournament Circuit 2019 Champion.

LSHM Pike & Shotte Game

Austin, Texas

By Scott Hendrickson

We had a great ECW game of Pike & Shotte on Saturday. 4 Players. Royalists and some mercenary Imperialists made it past the Parliamentarian blockade against the Roundheads. Both side had 2 infantry battalia of 4 shotte and 2 pike, 2 cavalry battalia of 2 units, 1 light and 1 medium gun.

Fortunately the Royalists won the race for the hedges in the center of the table. On the right the Royalists shotte packed the hedge with pike in support. The imperialist were more spread out and stretched across with only cavalry in reserve.

The Parliamentarian left got into a bit of a traffic jam and little forward progress was made for a couple turns. However, it did see the bravest of cavalry charges attempt to push some of the shotte clear of the hedge line.

Some amazing closing fore and unlucky saving rolls saw the regiment break and run away. By turn 5 the roundhead commander seeing the certain defeat of trying to trade shots with the enemy in cover went all in to melee the enemy out of their position.

A few turns of good back and forth saw a couple royalist pushed away, but then Rupert threw in the reserve and the Daddy's lads had 1 battalia broken and 2 others close... they marched away and concerned the field.

It was a great game, 3 locals and a gentleman who was in town from New Hampshire enjoying a fun game of Pike & Shotte. The game was played at the Texas Toy Soldier in Carrollton (Dallas-Fort Worth) area. Scott is an active member of the Lone Star Historical Miniatures (LSHM) club located throughout Texas. By Justin Baeza

We had a good game of V4 Hasty attack last night with Tony and myself. The dice gods quickly sided with me as I was defender with delayed scattered reserves and Tony didn't receive any immediate reserves until third turn.

My ambush of 4 panthers managed to take out only one uparmored Sherman and bail another. But return fire and a failed remount gave panthers a lethal second round finishing off the needed Sherman's with reserves just arriving.

My three tigers Led by Otto Carious faces off vs three Pershing's in a dance of death. The deciding factor was Ottos lethal ability to ignore range and cover. At one point as I blitzed in and out using shoot and scoot as well Tony failed a FP test on one tiger.

The ultimate issues was now German reserves arrived in the perfect corner and the follow up Jackson's had no hope to bounce AT and died in place. Germany than went on aggressively offensive with all the luck (I'm not used to that). Good lessons learned by Tony as we called it after turn 9. German loses included only one panzer IV.

Americans loses included plt 5 76 mm Sherman's 6 M36 Jackson, three Stuart's, 3 Pershing. Honestly Tony's aggressive attack simply failed due to ambush and luck of the defeat of their Sherman's. The terrain on the flanks was pretty open allowing for maximum killing effectiveness of massed panthers. Tigers kept Pershing's out of the fight and vice versa until tide tipped heavy in German favor

Starship Troopers Game

San Antonio Texas

By Blake Radetzky

Blake ran an awesome game of Starship Troopers last Saturday at Multiverse Games in SA. Blake and Cameron handled the Arachnids. James, Michael, Daniel, Sean and myself showed up and played the Mobile Infantry side.

SITREP: Arachnid activity on the planet Klendathu is overwhelming. Bombardier bugs maintain a constant barrage of plasma around the planet. This disrupts all communications and reconnaissance from the surface and thus limits the efficiency of a main force assault.

Several MI platoons will be airdropped to the planet surface. Once there, MI will eliminate all Bombardier bugs, secure the landing zone, and eliminate any Brain bugs if any are present. After the bombardiers are neutralized, heavy armor assets will drop on the LZ.

The MI was able to kill three Bombardiers, but could never secure the LZ. Wave after wave of bugs took their toll. After about ten turns the heavy mechanized infantry arrived but it looked like the bugs had the upper hand. We called the game due to time

Bungle in the Jungle Game

A disastrous game of CONGO

By James Hughes (Austin Texas)

Another great game of CONGO. Well, great for the players, more of a bloody debacle for our intrepid adventurers. Pete, Albert, and Jake joined me for this game at the Austin Dragon's Lair, with Pete and Albert bringing their German and Russian-themed explorers' expeditions, Jake borrowing my Forest Tribes, and me fielding my peaceful Zanzibari traders.

We adapted the "Encounters in Hostile Lands" adventure from the Throne of Thunder expansion. This scenario is written for two players, who start in opposite corners, separated by a band of jungle running diagonally across the board. I re-arranged the layout to make sense with four players, replacing the single long diagonal with a cross-shaped arrangement of terrain. The primary goal is to get your lead character off of the opposite corner of the board. Secondary objectives are picking up valuable artifacts in the jungle, and defeating enemy characters.

Complicating matters, every time a unit enters the dense terrain, a fearsome tribe of cannibals launches a barrage of poison darts at that unit, and every other unit with Short distance. This proved devastating, and the Cannibals eliminated more figures than everyone else combined.

Early in the game. Jake's Forest Tribesmen are top-left. Tippu Tib's Zanzibaris are at the bottom. Hauptman Atackkopf's shamefully still unpainted Germans are to the right. The Mad Russian adventurer Sazinov is somewhere beyond the central mass of jungle.

Even the raucous Ruga Ruga are silent as they make their way into the daunting depths of the jungle.

The scenario naturally drew all four players to the center of the table. Tippu Tib faces off with Russian-employed askaris, while the Forest Tribe picks up green loot counter, which represents some of the valuable artifacts. Tippu Tib never made it past this point, and his group was slowly picked off by the poison darts, before he and a last bodyguard were overwhelmed by Forest Tribe spearmen.

In fact, not a single character survived...and most were killed by the cannibals!

An Elephant showed up midway through the game, but was content to linger outside the jungle. (We forgot to roll for its random movement after the first round.)

The last act. A pair of Russian Askaris somehow made it out of the jungle with two loot tokens they had picked up by vanquishing Germans and Forest Tribesmen. But even as they were about to make good their escape, they were cut down by a hail of poison darts. The last surviving Zanzibaris, a trio of Baluchi matchlock men, swooped in and picked up the artifacts. They were charged by a unit of spearmen, but amazingly defeated the spears, despite their poor melee skills. The spearmen dropped a third treasure before retreating (they can be seen ignominiously cowering near the great jungle bole).

Incredibly, it appeared I was going to net 12 victory points due to this bit of luck. But then, Jake insanely charged the Baluchis with a single tribal musketeer. Neither side scored any hits, but in CONGO, the defender retreats after a tie, leaving any loot behind...And so the Baluchis shamefully fled, leaving the triumphant Bunduki holding three treasure tokens! This was another example of the surprise endings that CONGO so often serves up.

KONGO-AFRIKA

Jake won with 24 points (16 from holding all four treasure tokens, and another 8 from having slain Tippu Tib and Pete's Kirangozi guide). I can't remember if Albert or Pete had any points, but I know I had zilch!

The real winners were definitely the cannibals...

'Nam Wrap-up. Last night we had Wes (ARVN), Kevin (Aussies) and Justin (Americans) take on Tony and Chris (Local Nationalist forces) in the Search and Destroy mission. The Free World players got the side with only 2 objectives while the Nationalist forces got the side with 3 objectives.

By turn 2, the Nationalist forces struck first taking the first objective. However, that was the end of the victory party as the two objectives on the Free World side were taken by the Aussies with good pressure from the Americans on the right flank and the ARVN on the left flank.

The Americans pushed the Nationalists off the right objective and decimated the infantry unit trying to take the middle objective. On the last turn, the Americans took the right objective earning the Free World team the victory. Great play and good fun. See you next week for Third World War Thursday.
