The Lone Star Historical Miniatures (LSHM).

We promote miniatures wargaming in primarily historical periods but also fantasy/sci-fi. We are not dedicated to one rule set or scale. We promote miniatures wargaming by running events, helping local conventions, and assisting with tournaments, financial backing and run demo games. We will also run gaming classes at schools. We encourage all gamers to be a part of our group to help support our common hobby.

WOW November is here and alas no MillenniumCon this year. This would have been our 23rd year holding the event. I will personally miss seeing old friends, making new ones and having an absolute fun weekend of gaming. We will take a “rain-check” this year and look forward to MillenniumCon 2021.

This year I would ask that you re-new or sign up for membership in LSHM. We normally get about 90% of our membership at MillenniumCon – so this year we will rely on you taking care of your membership on-line or by mail. See page 2 of the newsletter for details. Thanks so much for your continued support for the club and our effort to promote and sponsor the hobby of War-Gaming across Texas.

Have an absolutely great November, Veterans Day, and Thanksgiving. Please let us know how you are doing.

Stay Safe and healthy. Best wishes.

WARLORD WEDNESDAYS

by Blake Radetsky

The start of Warlord Wednesdays at, The Printed Meeple, was on October 7th. Warlord Wednesdays are game days featuring a game by Warlord Games as a Learn to Play game night.

The first Warlord Wednesday game was; Black Seas.

Fleets available were British, French and Spanish. Each fleet contained a Frigate and two Brigs.

The scenario was a meeting engagement with victory conditions of either having two ships strike or sunk or any combination of the two.

Game length would be 6 turns.

As this was a Learning game, I got more involved in the play of the game with explanations and only remembered to snap a couple pictures.

Turns One and Two was maneuvering. Turn Three saw a lot of action, the changing wind favored the British Frigate to move first and it was able to gain a raking fire on the stern of the French Brig, causing devastating fire with two Critical Hits, resulting in the French crew striking colors.

THE BRITISH

THE FRENCH

THE SPANISH

WARLORD WEDNESDAYS

Shows the collision between the British and French Brigs before the French Brig sunk.

The final position of the British ships having narrowly escaping a collision.

However, due to wind direction the next ship to move was the British Brig which could not drop sail enough to avoid slamming into the French Brig. Both crews failed their Skill Tests and collided.

The result of the collision was the sinking of the French Brig and heavy hull damage to the British Brig.

Having sailed through the French Brig's debris, the British Brig was heading towards their Frigate's midship on a collision course. The Crew of the Brig passed their Skill Test and was able to avoid collision with the Frigate.

Meanwhile, the wind change that gave the British the moves first also threw the other French ships into the wind forcing the crews to pass Skill Tests which they failed and both ships took damage. The French Frigate kept failing their test for turn four and turn five getting more damage. This gave the other British Brig enough time to move into range of the French Frigate and scored a Critical Hit with their first broadsides and the other two British ships were able to sail into long range of the French Frigate and all scored direct hits on the poor French Frigate two were Critical Hits. The French Frigate was sent to the bottom of the sea.

Victory to the British!

[Apologies to all the gamers out there for not having finished the ships before hosting this game. However, they are back at the dockyards where the riggers are hard at work.]

SAGA Terrain

By Pete Attack

Just a quick word on a hobby purchase many may find useful. I thank / blame Russell Helms for showing me this product at the last MCon as well as posting on the Facebook SAGA group. 😊 If you are interested, you can find this at <https://playmats.eu/> My purchase was for the SAGA Tournament Set (13 pieces) as well as some extra packs with Hills (3) and Rough Ground (3).

All of this ran about $85 so it is a bit pricey, but for 19 pieces of terrain that can be used for 15mm and 28mm games, it is not too bad – especially if your gaming has you traveling.

The “small” pieces in the SAGA pack are 2 fields, 3 woods, 1 rocky ground, 1 ruins, and 2 swamps.

The larger pieces of terrain include a field, a forest, rocky ground, and a hill.

A Halloween Bolt Action tournament was held on October 24th at Texas Toy Soldier in Carrollton, Texas. The tournament allowed a single, generic-reinforced platoon (infantry only). Units had to be selected from the Armies of XXX Book or the appropriate theatre book for minor nations introduced later in the development of Bolt Action. Ten players took all the available slots for the competition. Proper preventions were in place that kept us in line with all government requirements and suggestions. We played three rounds of two hours each!

The morning started with players being paired up and facing a unique scenario called Haunted Grounds. Anytime a unit entered any type of rough ground or cover the unit was forced to see if they had disturbed those who had fallen in battle over this land in the past. A 5-6 meant that no spirits were found; a 3-4 meant that you had to roll D2 pins; a 1-2 meant you had been completely spooked and must roll D3 pins. This scenario was a lot of fun and forced everyone to weigh the risk of adding pins with the risk of being caught out in the open! Players received one point per unit destroyed and had to win by two.

Round 2 was called Cornfield Maze. The always knowledgeable officers (fresh lieutenants) have led their troops into cornfields and chosen to follow weird cuts in them. Each unit had to roll a die to see when they would actually make it to the battlefield! A 5-6 means the lieutenant and his force were reliable and arrive on Turn 1! A 3-4 meant the unit was delayed and arrived on Turn 2. A 1-2 meant that the unit was lost in the corn and would not arrive until Turn 3. The players had great fun having to overcome the piecemeal arrival of their forces compared to the arrival of their opponents' force. Players received one point per unit destroyed and had to win by two.

BOLT ACTION ROUND 1
Haunted Grounds
The armies

Round 3 was the final round and aptly titled Trick or Treat. Thirty different markers were placed on the tables with numbers face down. The players could seize them by touching them and letting the TO know what the number on it was. This was then cross-referenced with a list that stated what happened next! Players could receive prizes, objective points, advantages for their forces or a trick that had been set by their opponent! Casualties, pins and fleeing forces tricked several players during the round. Others won markers, objective points and even the chance to bring casualties back from the dead! It is Halloween after all!

We then met together and handed out awards.

Levi Porter won 1st Place with his Soviet Union force.

Wayne Carver won 2nd Place with his Soviet Union force.

Aaron Jahns won 3rd Place with his Soviet Union force.

Ben Knoll won the Wooden Spoon Award with his United States force.

Aaron Jahns won Best Painted Army for his all-female winter Soviet force

Ricky Moore won Best Themed Army for his Polish Lancer force

Michael McCoy won Best Sportsman (running Italian 8th Army)

A huge thank you to Lone Star Historical Miniatures for sponsoring our tournament!

Another huge thank you to Warlord Games and Jon Russell for the excellent sponsoring of the tournament as well!

We had a great day of fun and camaraderie and look forward to another tournament soon! We were excited to showcase the game to several new people who bought into Bolt Action and are looking forward to joining in the future!

Medieval Skirmish Gaming

By Frank Thompson

Played “The Missing” in Rangers of Shadow Deep over the last couple days. I treated the mission very much as a tutorial, which it clearly is. Mistakes made were minimal, and the game produced a satisfying narrative. I had some early good rolling which probably skewed the scenario, namely finding Avendine’s corpse at the first, and closest, clue marker.

This was offset by having a rat spawn on top of my rogue and chewing her up good in short order. Overall, this isn’t a very hard scenario, but it is easy to get overextended, which leaves heroes vulnerable to a skewed die roll even though the ‘baddies’ aren’t particularly strong.

The party see off the last zombies, although Gwen is wounded in the process.

I think players familiar with D6 rulesets may be surprised how often dice can go against you in a D20 system. The key to playing well is minimizing the chances for a swingy combat role to impact you hard. Healing effects, supporting fights with allies, and ranged attacks all help a player avoid letting simple luck kill off heroes of your party.

The Missing, Tum 1
Sir Bors stands between the incoming rats and zombies and his companions

I observed that while luck dropped a rat on my rogue, I should not have had her try to clear the rat by herself. This caused her to be wounded, and left her open to the rat attacking on its activation later. In fact, my sorceress should have healed her then and there, but was focused on killing the zombie closing on her. My recommendation is to really consider order of activations with an eye at managing risk, not maximizing attacks, in order to get the most out of your party.

After finding treasure the previous turn, Gwen searches the southern most house...

The Riders of Rohan vs Men of Dale & Dwarves

By Chris Lisanti

I had a fun game this week with Jake Flores and his fine terrain for the Fog of War mission. The dwarves and Men of Dale came out spread apart with the Riders of Rohan starting in the middle. Ranged fire was ineffective for Rohan and the Men of Dale took down two Redshield Riders convincing them to go back in the middle to take on the dwarves with Theoden

The two dwarf bands were separated providing an opportunity for the speedy Riders to get around each band.

The San Antonio Texas MESBG community is currently holding a 500pt league. The league is run by Ryan Koops and has 14 players participating. If you would like to join now or when the group runs another campaign contact Ryan on the SAMEBG page:

Very impressive spear throwing following good cavalry charges left a very angry Thrain by himself in the end for the dwarves.

Neither side wounded the targeted hero while Rohan got their objective and broke the dwarf/Men of Dale force. 9-3 Rohan victory. Both sides had the requisite painted minis for the next round bonus.

(Jake Flores): Here are my pics from the slaug-uh, game against Christopher Lisanti. It was more of a friendly league game than a "hardcore league/tournament" game and it was fun even though I suffered a big loss. :)

Even though my dwarves died, it was and will always be awesome to see kills from Throwing Weapons. Lol I don't know why, but they're just so cool and to get kills with them, on either side, is always a treat.

Robert Williams submitted this report: A fun time was had by all as far as I could tell. We had a lot of new players who enthusiastically played and learned a lot. We created an atmosphere that was conducive to learning the game and walked a lot of people through this first tournament and for some their first game of Bolt Action. The players I had taken under my wing left the table having had fun and are eager to get more games in now.

GHQ Micronauts rules small ship action. I have a German merchant ship being escorted by destroyer's and torpedo boats being chased by Mr. Paul's British hunter class ships.

This game did not last long as Mr. Paul's first salvo sunk my lead ship and almost sunk the next one in line, then he peeled off two hunters and went after the merchant ship.

We had Air power, Steam powered tractors, Engineers, Pontoon bridge, Gun boats, and Turks in trenches. Tough road for the Brits! I hit the Turks with everything all at once.

They held on the right but I broke through on the left and was able to establish a bridgehead for the pontoon bridge. I got excited and forgot to take late battle photos with the bridge. Not sure if that is good or bad!

A weekly Battlefront Game Report from Lone Star Historical Miniatures

This weeks WWII wrap up: Mark Reed (W. German Leopard 2 company) defended against Eric Warren and Chris Lisanti (Soviet T-62 battalion) in the Rearguard mission.

Between not being well suited for a defensive mission and relative paucity of concealing terrain features for vehicles, the West Germans were fighting a difficult battle.

The large BMP-1 infantry unit marched straight on to one objective and good fire from the T-62s took out most of the Leopard 2s and the one Gepard contesting the objective.

Flames of War World War II

San Antonio, Texas

By Chris Lisanti

WW II late war update. The first game saw Rob Shelton's fallschirmjagers defend against Nathanael's KV heavy tank battalion in the Bridgehead mission. The Germans also had old mines so there were 9 minefields strewn across the battlefield.

Good shooting between Flak 36s and heavy machine guns all in nests took their toll on the Soviets who were not helped by poor artillery support. Victory to the Germans.

The 2nd game saw Warren's Sherman company take on Chris's SS Panther company in the Dust Up mission. The regular Shermans were no contest against the two SS Tigers. 3 very tough StuGs slowed the strong American reserves of both 76 mm Shermans and M-10s.

The Americans had thrown nearly everything at the Germans going for a quick victory but were denied, and once the slow German Panthers reserves showed up they took out the three mortar half-tracks contesting the objective and conceded to the Germans. Next week WW III/Team Yankee.

See you next month

Blood and Plunder

By Ian “Blackbeard” Straus

Now a report on the October 5th campaign game, which Charles Ray and I played at Knight Watch. We played encounter at sea, our two ships approaching each other at right angles to the wind.

My long range cannon fire failed to cause any casualties but caused a leak. Next turn, at closer range, Charles' Brethren of the coast fired big volleys and caused casualties.

My Buccaneers' musket fire was less, and this time Charles had a bark with reinforced sides = hard cover. And I couldn't save, Turn three Charles shot first and faster, and I still couldn't save.

My sea dogs didn't get a second broadside off. My sloop's whole front deck was wiped out by musket fire. I voluntarily struck. I got 1 Rep point, Charles got 4. Neither could improve yet.

Next games TBA, when Riley can get free.

English Buccaneers fought an amphibious control the field engagement against my self-employed Brethren of the Coast. It was a great battle with lots of musketry on both sides, but my Brethren of the Coast had the edge since all of Ian's force was DRUNK! After a couple of rough turns with both of our Forlon Hopes being destroyed,

I managed to get a unit of veteran Filibustiers into the same section of trees as his command unit. They marched forward and fired at point blank range into Ian's command unit of Filibusters with a standard bearer; Ian voluntarily struck before my Filibusters could charge home to finish off his commander and his last remaining Filibuster. Next game is tentatively set for next Thursday (11/5) at the Printed Meeple

I 3D printed Xebecs in 1/700 for Black Seas. I used heavy paperclip wire for the masts and yards, the sails were made in Photoshop and printed on cardstock. Brigs and Frigate are from the Black Seas starter set.

Agincourt 2020 using 28mm Figures. Battle of Agincourt, (October 25, 1415), decisive battle in the Hundred Years' War (1337–1453) that resulted in the victory of the English over the French. The English army, led by King Henry V, famously achieved victory in spite of the numerical superiority of its opponent.

Napoleonic forces almost done 1 cavalry regiment each will complete the 30 minute demo game. Once that's done I'll snap a few with terrain and all included... then will start building up troops for larger scenario games.

My recently completed units for Et Sans Resultat (ESR). All 10mm Pendraken figures.

Rotating new painted units across all my time periods and games, it takes awhile for armies to get reinforcements. My ECW cavalry got a 50% boost as I got 2 units finished this week. Still a long way to go just to finish what I already bought this represents about 35-40% of the finished army. My first unit using contrast paints for the horses is in this bunch... can't really tell between them and the far messier oil wash method, so that's good news. Need to find a good flag provider for them...
