There will be 3 rounds played. Missions will be announced at sign-in.

Priorities in pairings in round 1: Pair Axis vs. Allied; pair opponents from different cities.

Priorities of pairings in rounds 2 & 3 will be: No repeats vs. the same opponent; pair Axis vs. Allied; Highest cumulative scores vs. highest.

GAME KASTLE AUSTIN

by Josh Atchley

We had a great turnout and a lot of fun at Flames of War open play in Austin last night! We were able to get in two games running, the first, a free for all featuring Andrew's British against Alex's Americans on a gorgeous Italy table that Andrew created. A game of cat and mouse with a lot of big guns maneuvering for position, with a mad dash for the objectives by some Crocodiles and American Stuart's at the end, called for time but with a lot of destroyed armor littering the field.

The second game was my Soviets against Aaron's Germans in No Retreat. This was Aaron's first game since version 2, so it was awesome to see him coming back to the game!

Aaron's panzergrenadiers held the line against wave after wave of Soviet armor, proving their mettle after wiping out two platoons of T34s in close combat without losing a man. Shifting focus to the attack on the left flank, the T70s screened the Guards IS-2s gunning for the panzergrenadiers in the woods.

A brutal assault pushed the Germans off the objective before the Panthers could arrive to turn the tide, resulting in a Soviet victory.

Thanks to all who came out! We'll see you again next week!

Battle Tech

By Frank Crull

This month's fight involved Victor Steiner-Davion's 10th Lyran Guards versus the Word of Blake 52nd Shadow Division at the Steiner city of Longenes. Unfortunately, Victor was not present for the fight.

This scenario had three objectives: destroy the other side, find the secret Star League cache and try to avoid damage to the buildings.

The Lyran's city looked as follows as the 10th Lyran Guard approached:

The Word of Blake approach was open over more open terrain.

As the Guards entered the city, they would eventually congregate around a group of trees as seen below. Since Word of Blake (WoB) was using their infamous C3i network, the Guard came prepared with almost every mech using ECM to interfere with the network.

The WoB mechs pushed the Guard over toward the trees by outnumbering the one flanking unit, the Dragon Fire and Wolfhound. For a change, the WoB mechs did not try and destroy the city if they started to lose, but actually could lose the scenario if too much damage was done to the city.

The Lyrans actually stayed clustered around this set of trees the entire fight. While able to support each other, the terrain worked against their firepower by staying in the trees.

The portion of the fight that swung the fight toward the WoB was the fight between the Lyran Maelstrom and the WoB Archangel. An exchange between a heavy mech and an assault mech never goes well for the heavy mech. The Maelstrom lost most of its armor while shooting at the Archangel and more importantly, lost its ER PPC. The Archangel suffered only armor damage.

Because the Maelstrom was losing this exchange, the Lyrans moved up the Wolfhound to try and get a kill to support the Maelstrom. Unfortunately, the Wolfhound was plastered and became a mission kill. The Maelstrom retreated to Lyran lines at that point. Because the Lyran would not leave the city, the scenario was considered a marginal victory for WoB.

ConsimWorld Expo Dallas 2022

12 – 15 May

Marriott Dallas Allen Hotel and Convention Center

Allen, TX

<https://www.consimworld.com>

By Mark Sanchez

The wargaming began at 6:00 pm on Thursday evening and continued until Sunday evening when hotel staff wanted to start folding up the tables. More than 125 registered wargamers and I don't know the number of on-site registrations for ConsimWorld's annual Dallas Expo. The 22d annual flagship event will be in Tempe, AZ, 26 Aug – 2 Sep. The Tempe muster typically attracts over 300 wargamers, designers, producers, vendors and exhibitors. The Expos include an amazing flea market and vendor halls.

Expo Dallas featured several wargame designers which is a special opportunity for personalized instruction and tutorials. I enjoyed spending time with Mike Denson and his unique “The Last Hundred Yards” design of WW II company-scale combat. I snapped the picture while Mike escaped for an evening dinner break. There are a plethora of restaurants around the hotel. Mike published his game thru GMT Games and also hosts a ‘The Last Hundred Yards’ Facebook group. I recommend reading Charles MacDonald’s (Col, USA, ret) “Company Commander” to appreciate this game system.

The non-stop wargaming schedule of ConsimWorld Expo allows for the experience of ‘monster’ games which are broad in scope and area of operations. “Pacific War” is such a monster covering the entire theater 1941-1945. Operations move from the overall strategic map of the Pacific to the focused engagement zone. Interesting to see the carrier air group run out of fuel during the Battle of Midway!

“Pacific War” gave me a platform to plug MILLENNIUMCON’s successful “Victory in the Pacific” tournaments and distributed flyers and handouts for the upcoming November convention.

I especially appreciated the Expo's opportunity to meet a few wargaming 'celebrities' whom I've been following online. These YouTube wargamers included Big Board Gaming and Moe's Game Table. Through these gents I've become an online fan of The War Room, Tony's Board Life, The Player's Aid, and Rough Swordsman Wargamer. And yes, of course, our own LSHM Facebook site!

Looking forward to Tempe this summer and John Kranz says that 2023 will be CSW Expo Dallas again.

Remember: 6 August will be FOWSA at the new BattlePub!

The War of the Spanish Succession 1701-1714

Kingdom of France and Electorate of Bavaria
Norway

Marshal Camille d'Hostun de la Baume, duc de Tallard
Général – Dave or Dev
James FitzJames, 1st Duke of Berwick

Max Emanuel or Maximilian Emanuel

Général William Hardaway – Lance – Son of Mars

Great Britain, Dutch Republic, and Denmark

Henry, Count of Nassau, Lord of Overkirk
Lieutenant General Jørgen Rantzau
Prince-Bishopric of Montenegro Vincent Oradesky – Commander of the Allied Right Wing (British, Hanover, and Prussia Forces)

Lieutenant General Randy Lees – Cavalry Leader of the Left Wing

In the year 1707 Allied and French and Bavaria forces fought a brutal battle for three river crossing positions. This a detail report of the battle. French and Bavaria lead by Marshal Camille d'Hostun de la Baume, duc de Tallard approach from the North. Right wing commanded by James FitzJames, 1st Duke of Berwick and Lieutenant Général – Dave or Dev leading Bavaria, Swiss Guard, French and Irish Infantry and Cavalry Regiments. Under the Max Emanuel or Maximilian Emanuel and Général William Hardaway – Lance – Son of Mars lead left wing French forces.

Allied Commander is Henry, Count of Nassau, Lord of Overkirk.

Lieutenant General MacNiece – McNease – Commander of the left wing consisting of Dutch and Danish Forces. Danish forces led by Lieutenant General Jorgen Rantzau. Dutch and Danish Cavalry forces led by Lieutenant General Lees.

Prince-Bishopric of Montenegro Vincent Oradesky commands the Allied Right Wing British, Hanover, and Prussia Forces.

Turns one through five allied right wing forces slowly move onto the southern board. British Veteran infantry forces (four regiments) slowly move through village while eight regiments of cavalry and two artillery units approach the hills located on the southern board.

Under the leadership of Marshal Camille d'Hostun de la Baume, Major General Max Emanuel and Général William Hardaway – Lance – Son of Mars the French left wing forces take the initiative in immediately crossing the eastern bridge and establish a brigade head with three cavalry French and Bavaria Cavalry regiments, heavy artillery battery, four Bavaria infantry regiments, and three French Veteran Regiments.

From the North French and Bavaria forces under the command of James FitzJames 1st Duke of Berwick and Lieutenant General Dave approaches the center bridge located in the center part of the battle field.

Lieutenant General McNease commanding eight Dutch and Danish Veteran Regiments, one heavy artillery battery, and one light artillery battery quickly take the initiative and establish defenses on the central bridge. Forces are positioned on south edge of the river and northern edge of the village. Artillery was unlimbered on a hill located on the northern end of the village by turn three.

By

the end of turn four Lieutenant General McNease's forces are in place.

On turn three, Lieutenant General Lees' four regiments of Danish and Dutch Heavy Cuirassier cross the western ford and by the end

Of turn four General Lee's forces threaten James FitzJames 1st Duke of Berwick and General Dave's French, Irish, and Bavaria forces. On turn three, General Dave commands three Bavaria infantry regiments and two cavalry regiments to attack Danish and Dutch Cuirassier.

The Death Ride of the Veteran 1st Danish Cuirassier and Veteran 1st Dutch Cuirassier. On turn five seeing the 1st Bavaria Dragoons cross over the northwestern hill unsupported and large portion of the of the French, Irish, and Bavaria forces in column marching towards to the center bridge. General Lees orders 1st Danish Cuirassier to attack the units on the road and orders the 1st Dutch Cuirassier to attack the 1st Bavaria Dragoons. General Dave orders the 1st French Dragoons to counter charge the 1st Danish Cuirassier and the 1st Bavaria Dragoons to counter charge the 1st Dutch Cuirassier. With trumpets blaring The 1st Danish Cuirassier and 1st Dutch destroying it while holding the second squadron in reserve. During this gallant charge Lieutenant General Lees is wounded.

Cuirassier shatter both their enemy opponents. With their blood boiling the 1st Danish Cuirassier Squadron charges the heavy battery

During turns four through eight General McNease's artillery pound French Irish Dragoon Regiment, Bavaria Cuirassier Regiment, and French Irish Infantry Regiment. At the same moment, these same units receive first close platoon fire from the 1st and 2nd Danish Regiments. Taking heavy casualties French Irish Dragoon Regiment, Bavaria Cuirassier Regiment, and French Irish Infantry regiments were routed.

General Dave orders the Elite French Swiss Guard to attack the center bridge in column. With flags flying and drums beating, the Elite French Swis Guard march towards the bridge. The attack is foiled by the cool aimed platoon fire of the 1st and 2nd Danish regiments. French Swiss Guard are shattered and route. During the capture of the heavy battery, General Lees is wounded and Colonel Roger Mallory assumes command and orders the 2nd Squadron of the 1st Danish Cuirassier Regiment to charge the Swiss Guard. Across the field of hell the 2nd Squadron of the 1st Danish Cuirassier regiment receives canister shot and with trumpets blaring they continue to charge hitting and destroying the Swiss Guard and Irish Infantry Regiments.

Less than 50 Cuirassier are left of the 1st Danish Cuirassier Regiment. By turn ten, the combine forces of General McNease's and General Lee's forces have destroyed 3 cavalry regiments, 3 infantry regiments, and heavy artillery unit. The 1st Dutch, 2nd Dutch, and 2nd Danish Cuirassier Regiments move safely back across the river to allied territory. Remnants of the 1st Danish Cuirassier Regiment Retreat across the center bridge carrying the capture colors of their vanquish enemy.

Through inspiration leadership of Colonel R Lees (1st cousin to General Lees of the left wing cavalry forces) takes over the right wing of the French and Bavaria forces to rally and re form their lines which they do. Note: Colonel R Lees serves under James FitzJames, 1st Duke of Berwick

The Saga of the Son of Mars.

Under the leadership of Marshal Camille d'Hostun de la Baume, duc de Tallard and Général William Hardaway – Lance – the French and Bavaria forces establish a strong bridge head across the eastern bridge with three French Infantry regiments (Regiment de Navarre, Regiment d'Auvergne and Regiment d'Artois) and one Infantry regiment of Bavaria (Gardes de Baviere); two French/Bavaria Cavalry Regiments (2nd Bavaria Dragoons and 4th French Gendarmes); and field artillery battery.

On turn 8, Prince-Bishopric of Montenegro Vincent Oradesky orders five cavalry regiments (Hanover Lieb Regiment, Spiegel's Cuirassier, Voight Regiment, Woods Cuirassier Regiment, and Windham's Dragoon Regiment) to charge the left flank of the French/Bavaria forces and orders British 1st Regiment of Foot Guards (3rd Foot – the Buffs), 8th King's Foot (the King's Regiment), 10th Foot (Lincolnshire Regiment), 15th Foot (East Yorkshire Regiment) to advance and engage the French Infantry Regiments. At the same moment Lieutenant General McNease orders the 1st Dutch Fusiliers, 2nd Dutch Fusiliers, and 3rd Dutch Fusiliers to advance and engage the French Infantry Regiments.

With trumpets blaring 10 squadrons of Allied cavalry cross over the southern hill and thunder down the slope towards to the 2nd Bavaria Dragoons and 4th French Gendarmes. Général William Hardaway – Lance orders both cavalry regiments to counter charge however, Bavaria Dragoons do not advance and the 4th French Gendarmes charge with Général William Hardaway – Lance – leading them against the tidal wave of allied cavalry to allow the French Infantry to refused their left flank. Bavaria Dragoons are decimated and the 4th French Gendarmes charge recklessly into the allied cavalry dealing death and destruction however they are overwhelmed.

By a miracle, Général William Hardaway's returns from the swirling mass of allied cavalry squadrons with approximately 50 Gendarmes left holding the French Regimental colors. Realizing he is now in command, Général William Hardaway's rides along the lines of the French Infantry regiments encouraging them with brave speeches to fight on. The men of these four regiments take heart and prepare for the allied tidal wave. Seeing their general's uniform in tatters, hat gone, and holding the French flag, the men they are being led by a Son of Mars!

Henry, Count of Nassau, Lord of Overkirk seeing the brave young French General encouraging his men to fight to the death, he sends a parley team to give terms of honor to the Son of Mar's. The terms are generous. The four French infantry regiments are allowed to march off the field of honor with their colors and arms and return to France. Général William Hardaway's accepts the terms and safely marches his men off the field of honor.

Austin Middle Earth Strategy Battle

By Pete Atack

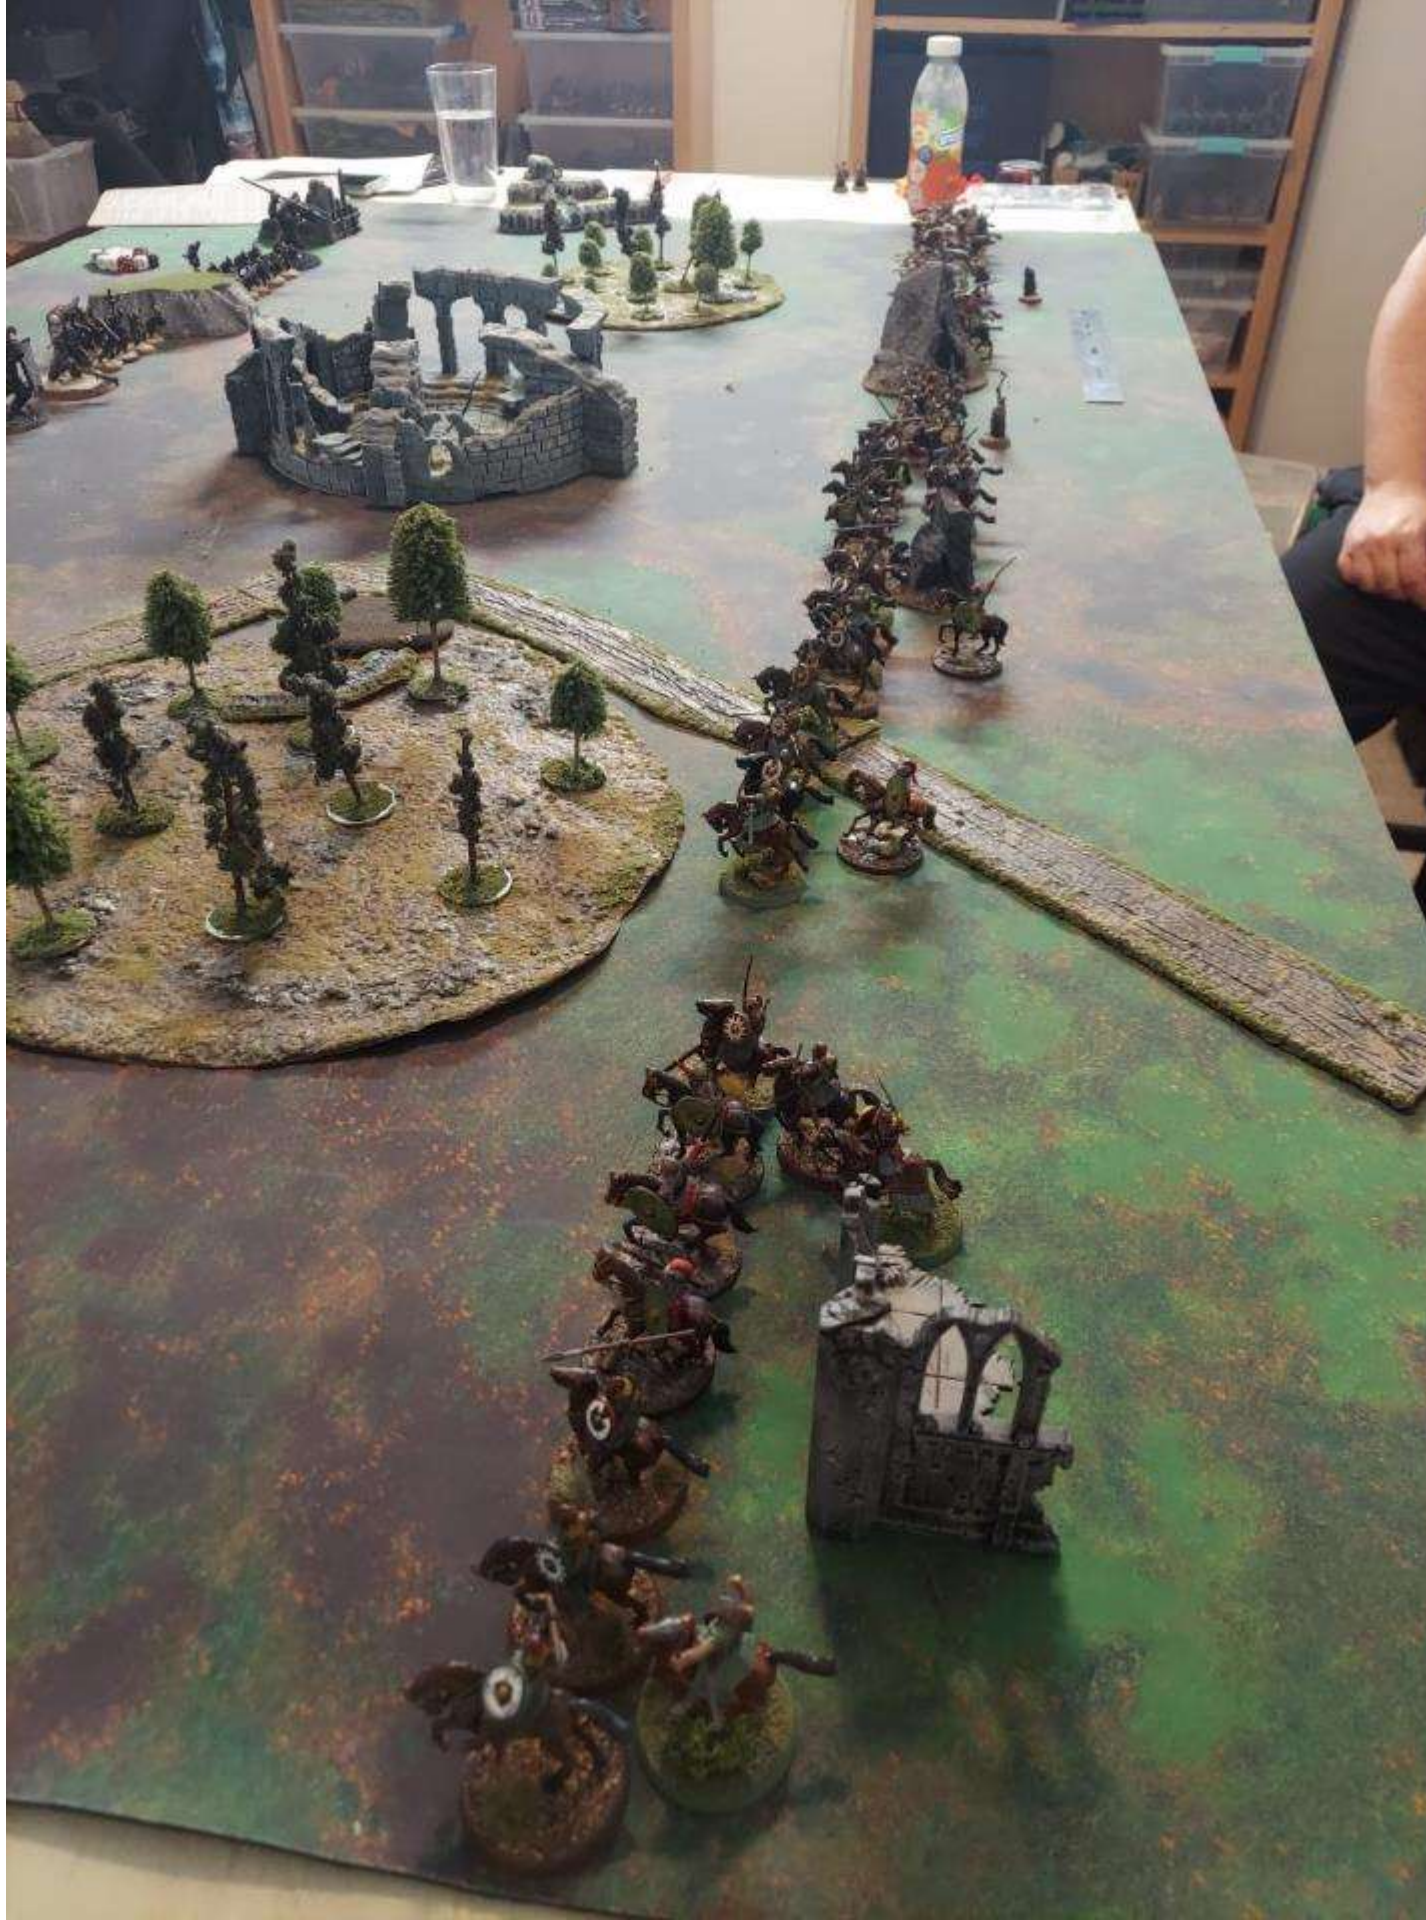

Private community · 47 members

We met up with Adam Rios and Albert this past weekend for a huge battle. 1500 points per side pitting Rohan vs Isengard.

We played the Fog of War scenario.

Isengard was led by Saruman and featured Grima, Lurtz, Sharku, Ugluk, a Captain and a Shaman plus 3 Trolls and about 57 Warriors.

Rohan was led by Theoden and featured Eomer, Erkenbrand, Grimbold, 4 Captains, and 61 warriors (riders, foot, royal guard, red shields).

After a massive and bloody clash, Rohan broke, but won 9-6.

Round #6 - March to Mordor battle report:

The San Antonio MESBG Fellowship is running a 3 month long campaign called the "March to Mordor" A series of games fought between 6 "GOOD" and 6 "EVIL" players. Here is a battle report from Chris Lisanti (Dwarves):

March to Mordor Update. Chris (King Durin, Mardin and the dwarves) took on Jake (Moria with Druzhag, Ashrak, spiders, warg marauders, wargs, and goblins) in the Fog of War mission.

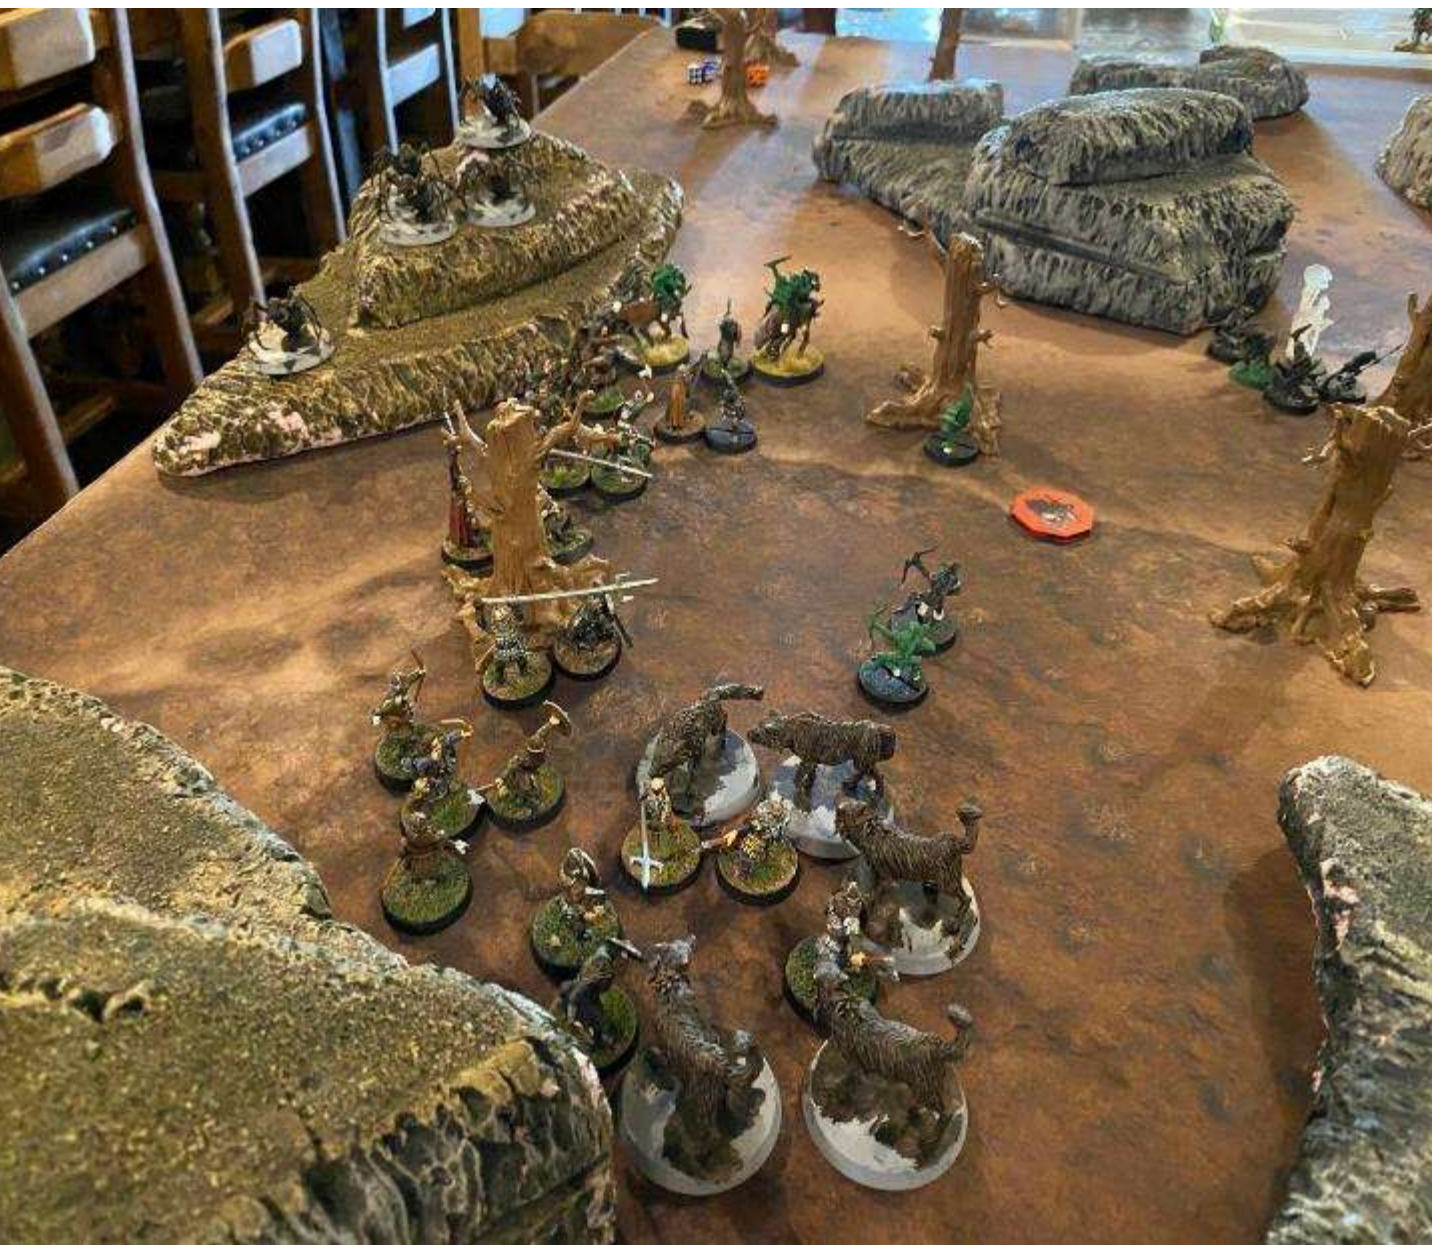

The spiders, wargs and warg marauders sped out across the battlefield with Druzhag and Ashrak panting hard to catch up. Meanwhile King Durin assembled the line of dwarves between a rocky hill and ruins positioning all 8 dwarf archers on the hill. The archers were deadly which combined with numerous thrown rider 1s matched every time with 5/6 to wound resulted in numerous casualties from bow fire (one bow hit wounded the warg with two riders also wounded from thrown riders--three wounds with a single hit!). The lack of might points hampered the warg marauders from charging more than once with no wounds the entire game from the marauders.

The spiders were the main hitters for Moria while the dwarves were all getting into the action. King Durin actually took three wounds avoiding one by fate due to the spiders, but was still on the battlefield at the end. Ashrak got too close to the dwarves and two dwarves on successive turns wounded him although he avoided the first with a successful fate roll.

However, both dwarves fell to the paralyze effect after wounding him. In the end, the dwarves broke Moria with the dwarves one shy from breaking themselves. Mardin took no wounds and neither side controlled their targeted terrain piece. Final Score: King Durin-4; Moria-0.
